ARETHEY HEROES?

Leading Lady for Many Male Stars Declares "No."

Working With "Wallie Reid Like Blind Man's Buff."

Are leading men heroes to their leading women? This question has been asked of many a screen actress, and Miss Looms is a pretty leading woman who really ought to know about a lot of famous movie men.

Marsaret Loomis, who has achieved an enviable reputation as a leading woman on the screen, thus gives some sidelights on the male stars she has played opposite:

"Playing opposite Wallace Reid is like a game of 'blind man's buff.' One never knows exactly what to expect of Wallic.' Even the director is never quite sure what he is going to do next. He is one of the most per-feet of screen lovers because he always tempers his love making with a spark of humor. He is easy to work with because he never doubts the ability of the persons with whom he is working.

With Thomas Meighan, one must be constantly on the alert because Tommy is. He takes his work easily, albeit somewhat zeriously, and he is wise enough to know there must be wise enough to know there must be no footishness in his own particular brand of lovemaking. I have heard women in the audience become inarticulate with admiration of Tommy's manner of making love. It is a gift which he is quite unconscious. He is just a natural, genial, lovable young Irishman with a thread of the gold of romance running clear and bright thru his soul.

"In The Sins of St. Anthony," the only part I ever played with Bryant Washburn, he had the role of the absent-minded and studious lover. He is an ideal person with whom to work. He is always so anxious to get the viewpoint of the 'other fellow.' He is business-like, efficient, has infinite confidence in his director and co-tworkers and a sure intuition of how the public will react to his interpretation of his roles."

WHIL NOT FILM "FAUST,"

New York, May 21.—D. W. Griffith his space time.

Tod Browning has divided his work day into three shifts: plauning, "shooting," and cutting. He's writing a vandeville play in his space time. New York, May 21.—D. W. Griffith will not use "Faust" as the subject of his next pro Jetion, due to impending censorship in New York and other states. Elaborate preparations for an unusual interpretation of the great German classic have been put away a connection with the screen from the inuntil a firmer stability returns to the official attitude toward motion pictures.

Mr. Griffith had planned to go to Germany to take many of the scenes, and had the cast largely selected, but with the certainty of New York having an untried consorship and a growing in untried consorship and a growing interest in evere regulations of fitms thrunut the country, he has abundoned the risk of investing practically one-haif million dollars in the production.

May Collins and Charlie Chaplin, Whose Names Have Been Linked by Rumon

Los Angeles, May 21.—Charlie Chaplin is going to march to the tune of Lohengrin once more, according to all reports. That is, according to all reports save Charlie's and Miss May Collins's, the lady in the case. Althoneither will confirm the reports they persist in lunching, dining, walking and attending social affairs together. The camera has caught them together seegral times and both always look supremely happy.

May Collins a pretty little brown in haired miss whose screen career following a successful stage career. She was recently made leading woman in Goldwyn pictures and her recent work has been very highly praised. Due to the rumored romance, it is said, Miss Collins's new picture has been changed to 'A'll Fair in Love."

Mildred Harris and Charlie Chaplin were but recently divorced and rumor shas already coupled her name with that of Jack Pickford.

Missouri Officials Protest Contest Lost to K. U.

Jayhawkers Win by Two Points -No New Records.

Lawrence, Kan., May 21.—After the University of Kansas had won the annual track meet with the University of Missouri here Friday afternoon by a score of 59½ to 57½. Missouri university officials announced that they would protest the meet.

The protest, it was stated, was based upon an alleged incident during the running of the quarter mile, when Missouri officials charged Rhinehart, of Kansas, jostled Parker, of Missouri, at the turn on the first 50 yards. Referee Mike Ahearn ordered the race rerun, but Kansas officials refused to abide by the ruling on the ground that O'Leary, who won the race was in no condition to take the track again, it finally was decided to refer the matter to a committee of five men to be named by Referee Ahearn. Missouri officials stated that their notice of protest would stand but that they would abide by the decision of the committee.

The meet was devoid of spectacular
